Brett Davis Named 2018 Employee of the Year

Matt Starr and Sideline Power are proud to recognize Brett Davis as the 2018 Employee of the Year recipient. As VP of Support and Service, Davis has shown extraordinary commitment to his personal and professional growth through his commitment to the coaches with which he works. Davis has also taken on additional duties outside of the scope of his daily role, through traveling to clinics as needed, and even stepping in as Clinic Director for the inaugural #PoweredUp Clinic.

Davis has shown his value to Sideline Power and the Coaches he works with through his assistance of the 24/7 in-season support line, and providing a level of support unparalleled by any other company in the industry. Davis acknowledges that the most rewarding part of his job is being part of a team that focuses on helping coaches through providing exceptional customer service, stating, "To be part of a company that is growing each year and prides itself on building strong relationships with coaches and schools across the country is truly amazing."

As he moves from 2018 into 2019, Davis recognizes that, for him, the most challenging part of his job is also the most enjoyable. "Taking on the role of Clinic Director has been time consuming," says Davis, "There's always a lot of work in organizing an event like this, but we feel it will become a clinic that will continue to draw hundreds of coaches to Nebraska every year." Matt Starr, CEO of Sideline Power, however, knows that Davis is the right person for the job. "Brett doesn't typically need to do something twice. When he does something, he does it right the first time, which, if you've worked with Brett, you know."

Congratulations Brett Davis for being named Sideline Power 2018 Employee of the year.
